The index of physical volume (real growth rate) GDP is calculated as the ratio of the GDP of the reporting period calculated in constant prices, i.e. in the prices of the corresponding period of the previous year (real GDP) to GDP in current prices of the corresponding period of the previous year.

The GDP deflator index characterizes the average change in prices in the economy and is calculated as the ratio of nominal GDP (GDP of the reporting period in current prices) to real GDP.

When calculated in US dollars at the average exchange rate for the period under review, nominal GDP totaled 26 072 million US dollars (for January-June 2019 – 26 608 million US dollars).

For reference: in January-June 2020, the official exchange rate of the US dollar against the soum averaged 9 790 soums, in January-June 2019-8 427 soums.
